

Food & Drink Sector

The South West has an extremely active food & drink sector - which stems from it being home to some great produce.

Bristol in particular is known for its diverse and independent food & drink scene. This means it has become a destination in which to try out new dining concepts.

How we can help

Over the years, we've acted for many businesses in the sector, from manufacturers, to restaurants, retailers and breweries. We've built up a lot of sector knowledge which we apply when delivering the type of legal services these businesses need.

From start-up funding, to acquisition and integration of businesses for groups on a buy & build strategy, through to eventual exit, we deliver no-nonsense, commercial advice that meets your objectives.

Why Roxburgh Milkins?

We have the legal and sector expertise but it's how we deliver it that makes the difference.

Our focus is on delivering legal services in a more client-focused way, a way that works better for businesses. We do this by understanding our clients' needs and goals and delivering services that are designed to deliver those goals. We don't just provide something off the shelf.

This tight focus on requirements, combined with executing efficiently means we deliver good value for money.

Clients also love our responsiveness - they feel like they are our most important client. The way we give advice is described as "commercial", "no-nonsense" and is delivered by a "tight team", which our clients feel part of.
